Summit leaders reach agreement

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Carter and the leaders of six other non-Communist industrial powers jointly agreed at an economic summit conference Monday on measures to increase employment worldwide and reduce U.S. oil consumption by raising prices and cutting imports.

Carter, expressing satisfaction at the outcome of the two day session, said a "base of common purpose binds us together."

He pledged to increase the price of U.S. oil — now as low as $5.23 a barrel — to world levels — now approximately $13.50 — by the end of 1980, a move that could increase gasoline prices by seven cents a gallon.

Carter also pledged an energy program by the end of this year that would reduce oil imports by 2.5 million barrels a day by 1985. He did not specify how this would be accomplished, but it could be achieved through congressional approval of his energy legislation or by such administrative actions as import fees or quotas.

The joint strategy provides for increased growth in the Japanese and West German economies and a slower growth rate of about 4 percent in the United States, where the worsening inflation rate has become a dominant concern.

The United States has wanted the Japanese and West Germans to speed their economies. Obtaining their commitment was considered a major success for Carter.

Another success was the joint declaration that countries with large trade deficits, a category that includes the United States, need to increase exports and that countries with surpluses, among them West Germany and Japan, need to increase imports.

Carter told reporters that the results of the summit, the fourth in four years, "exceeded the expectations of all of us." He said the commitments by seven nations were "substantive and specific" and that "each one of us was cautious not to promise things we could not subsequently deliver."

Carter and the leaders of the other nations — German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, British Prime Minister James Callaghan, Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau — spoke at the lavish city theatre after the final session in the West German capital. Each endorsed the commitments listed in the summit communiqué.

They said they would hold another summit next year, but did not say where. Schmidt, host of the summit, said a follow-up meeting of officials of the seven nations would be held later this year to monitor how well each was meeting the commitments.

Schmidt also declared West Germany was "very satisfied with our results" and said his country was prepared to make a "substantial contribution to stimulate" its economy and increase growth by one percent beyond the current 1978 growth target of 3.5 percent.

The pledge by most of the nations to stimulate their economies is aimed at increasing employment internationally. Most of the nations, except for the United States, have relatively high unemployment rates.

Giscard d'Estaing said "the results of our meeting will affect all those who produce, all those who work ... its purpose is to bring about an improvement in the economic situation and stimulate employment."

In their joint communiqué, the leaders said: "We must create more jobs and fight inflation, strengthen international trading, reduce payments imbalances and achieve greater stability in exchange markets."

Carter said reducing inflation has become the top priority of U.S. economic policy and that he outlined details of his anti-inflation program to the summit, including the reduction in his tax cut proposal, and the "very tight budget" being prepared for fiscal 1980.

Robert S. Strauss, Carter's special assistant for trade negotiations, said the summit also made important progress on trade issues, making it possible to work out a new world trade agreement by the end of the year.

But he said the Carter administration still has not won satisfactory concessions to increase U.S. farm exports, considered the chief remaining stumbling block to a final agreement.

In addition to their economic accord, the summit leaders also adopted a statement of cooperation to combat terrorism, especially airplane hijacking, by belonging to cut off commercial air service to countries that aid hijackers.

Juvenile starts brush fire in Orem

A juvenile was responsible for setting a brush fire Thursday behind Grand Central. Orem Fire Marshall Brent Halladay said the fire at 340 1300 South "was a pretty wild scene" for a few nutes.

He said a shed and two cars were almost lost, but there was no serious property damage.

Halladay said the fire was started by a juvenile who was brought to the Police Department by his father.

Medieval castle guards Mideast delegates

NDON (AP) — The United States will urge Egypt to spell out its guarantees for Israel in new peace talks, opening today the walls of a medieval fortress in England, U.S. officials said.

Participants — Secretary of State R. Vance and Foreign Ministers Yitzhak Mordechai and Moshe Dayan of Israel and Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel of Egypt — arrived Monday, behind a shield of security, and flew by helicopter to Leeds Castle.

Officials, who asked not to be named, said Vance hopes that specific promises from Egypt — particularly to cope with extremists on the Bank of the Jordan River — could be matching Israeli concessions. The purpose is to draw Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin into an acknowledgement that Israel will withdraw from the West Bank, won from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast War.

An Israeli newspaper reported Monday that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's latest peace proposals, which have not been officially disclosed, call for Israel to turn the West Bank over to Jordan after five years, with Israel, Jordan and the Palestinians jointly administering it in the interim.

Sadat also would agree to a continued Israeli military presence in the West Bank to meet Israel's security needs, the Jerusalem Post reported. The Egyptians have denied repeatedly, however, that they would accept a continued stationing of Israeli troops in the occupied territories.

Vance, Dayan and Kamel scheduled brief informal talks Monday night at the castle, 45 miles southeast of here. Substantive discussions began Tuesday morning, with Vance planning to meet with the Israeli and the Egyptian, both separately and together.

Israel and Egypt have publicly declared each others' overall proposals for a settlement to be unacceptable.

But Dayan, before a helicopter whisked him away to the castle, said: "There are some meeting points in the two plans."

Demos vote conservative at Utah State Convention

By LON WILCOX
Universe Staff Writer

Support for a Right-to-Life amendment and a stand against the ERA were surprise results of the Democratic State Convention in Salt Lake City.

In what observers were calling the most conservative convention in many years, delegates meeting in the Salt Palace voted Friday night in favor of an amendment to the Human Rights plank of the party platform calling for a Constitutional Right-to-Life amendment. They followed that with a vote to withhold support for the ERA as a state organization, but passed a resolution calling for a seven-year extension on ratification for the ERA.

A move to reconsider the ERA stand was made Saturday morning, but was defeated by a large margin.

The only other major issue of the convention was the selection of a candidate to oppose Congressman Dan Marriott in the Second Congressional District race. Five Democrats were announced candidates with Edwin Farnham, a law professor at the University of Utah, and Peter S. Cooke, a bank marketing assistant, receiving the go-ahead for a primary election campaign.

Delegates listened to Utah Gov. Scott M. Matheson talk about the responsibilities of the Democratic Party in his keynote address Saturday afternoon.

"Let other political parties exploit their appeal," he said. "We Democrats refuse to sacrifice social justice on the altar of emotional sorcery that briefly stirs the blood, but alternately chills the national soul."

"The Republican Party slogan this year is 'limit Utah taxes — vote Republican,'" Matheson said. "It is therefore only appropriate for the Democrats to proclaim, 'For sensible tax limits — vote Democratic.'"

The practical side of convention politics was demonstrated by the number of food and refreshments booths provided by the various candidates for the delegates present.

Hungry delegates had their choice of hot dogs, hamburgers, salads, drinks, doughnuts, cookies and various other snacks while they read over the abundant campaign literature available. One candidate even provided an inflatable tent, bubble where delegates could escape from the noise and confusion of the convention floor.

Expressions not universal, psychologist to explain

For more than a century, scientists have argued about whether or not facial expressions of emotion are universal, or like language — specific to each culture.

Dr. Paul Ekman, a noted psychologist and director of the Human Interaction Laboratory at the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco, will discuss "About Faces: Understanding Emotional Expressions" at the BYU forum assembly today.

The talk is open to the public and will be given at 10 a.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC. It will be broadcast live on KBYU-TV, Channel 17, at 7 p.m. on KBYU-FM, Channel 11, and rebroadcast on both stations at 9 p.m. Sunday, July 23.

The noted psychologist asks, "Does a frown, a smile or a snarl mean the same thing for all people — a form of communication which bonds all humans? Or does confusion arise to create misunderstandings just because people falsely assume that these expressions can be understood without translation?"

Ekman points out that Darwin was correct when he postulated more than 100 years ago that emotional expressions are universal; they are the product of our evolutionary history.

"Yet culture also has an enormous impact on emotional expression, producing many differences superimposed on the universals in emotional expressions."

Ekman will discuss emotional expressions and words, reliability of facial expressions, cultural influences of emotional expressions and sex differences in emotional expression.

Currently, Ekman is completing a six year study as principal investigator on "Communication Through Nonverbal Behavior" under a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH). He was also principal investigator on another contract from the NIMH from 1972-77 studying depression. His latest study involves nonverbal behavior in deceptive interactions, testing hypotheses about the particular facial expressions and body movements which escape efforts to disguise communication and provide leakage of concealed information.

Author of dozens of articles and book chapters as well as four books, Ekman has won many awards for his research and writing. He earned the B.A. degree at New York University after attending the University of Chicago for three years. He was awarded M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at Adelphi University.

New director named for Honors Program

New director of the BYU Honors Program has been announced by Dr. G. Thomas, Academic vice president.

Gary L. Browning, associate professor of Russian language and literature, will assume his post Aug. 31 as the current director, Dr. Reba L. takes professional development to serve as a visiting scholar at the University.

Keele will be conducting research with the faculty in the department of marriage and family therapy organizational behavior. She will return to the BYU faculty in the fall of 1979.

In connection with the change, has also announced three new associate directors for the Honors Program. They are Dr. G. Eugene Anderson, associate professor of psychology, Dr. Clayne W. Robinson, associate professor of music and Dr. W. Warner, professor of sociology.

The new director and associate directors will work half-time in their respective disciplines.

The two current directors are Dr. Philip M. Flammer, associate professor of history, and Dr. Larry H. professor of humanities and comparative literature.

Flammer is on professional development leave to teach and do research at the College at Maxwell Air Force in Montgomery, Ala.

He has been named as the new man of the BYU Department of Languages and Comparative Literature, replacing Dr. Todd A. who will return to full-time teaching and research at BYU.

His challenge as a new directorate is to maintain the momentum of the Honors Program and to be as creative and innovative as our predecessors have been in meeting the needs of the intellectually gifted and motivated student," Browning said.

Browning was born in Idaho Falls, and earned in St. Maries, Idaho. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Syracuse University in 1965, his master of arts from Syracuse University in 1967 and his Ph.D. in Slavic languages and literature from Harvard University in 1974.

He joined the BYU faculty in the Department of Asian and Slavic Languages in 1976. He taught Russian language and literature at Bryn Mawr College, where the seminar approach to study is similar to BYU's Honors Program offering.

As a graduate student at Harvard, Browning taught Russian language, world folklore and oral and early literature.

Browning recently returned from the Soviet Union where he was manager of the Young Ambassadors' performance tour, the first such tour to go into the Soviet Union from BYU. He previously had made four other trips to the USSR, including a six-month tour in 1969 as a Russian-speaking guide for a U.S. State Department exhibition and a six-month visit again in 1973 as an exchange in the Young Scholars Research Program.

He completed an LDS Church mission in Finland and is currently on the High Council of the BYU Fourth Stake.

Browning and his wife, the former Joan Wagstaff, have three children and reside in Provo.

Massasoit finds permanent home in HFAC

Following suit of the statue of Karl G. Maeser in front of the Eyring Science Center and the Brigham Young statue in front of the Abraham O. Smoot Building, the Indian Massasoit sculpture will return to the Harris Fine Arts Center.

The statue of the American Indian, which used to stand in the north end of the Harris Fine Arts Center in the main gallery, will finally come to rest in the same building, but on the northeast patio.

According to Dale Fletcher, curator of the BYU Secured Art Gallery, some deliberation as to the location of the newly bronzed statue resulted in the decision.

"The old statue was made of plaster and therefore had to be placed indoors," Fletcher said. "Now that it has been cast in bronze, it can go outside where it belongs."

The statue must be carefully placed because of its great weight. Fletcher said it must be secured on a special cement base which is being made for it. A date for Massasoit's relocation is still undecided.

The plaster original was sculpted by Cyrus E. Dallin, a well-known artist from Springfield. The bronze statue is owned by the Ken Garff family of Salt Lake City and will eventually be donated to BYU, said Garff, a member of the BYU Advisory Council.

Guerrillas predict Marxist downfall

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Angolan guerrilla leaders here confidently predict the Marxist government in Luanda, propped up by the Soviet Union and protected by Cuban troops, will suffer a similar fate to that of U.S.-backed South Vietnam.

The leaders believe that, like the Americans in Vietnam, the Russians and Cubans are new hands at counterinsurgency tactics in African jungle and savannah terrain and unfamiliar with the alien languages and customs of the local people.

They also maintain, as do independent analysts, that the Luanda government would fall if either the foreign troops were withdrawn or if free popular elections were to be held.

Texan heat kills 19

DALLAS (AP) — A stubborn heat wave that has roasted a wide portion of North Texas for more than two weeks was blamed for 19 deaths in the Dallas-Fort Worth area by Monday. Another 16 persons have been hospitalized with heat stroke symptoms.

Public health officials renewed informal warnings that people stay indoors or in the shade. Temperatures reached or exceeded 100 degrees for 16 straight days through Monday in the two-city area as record heat scorched a wide area of North Texas and surrounding states.

Arizona murderer caught in Orem

A man wanted for murder in Arizona was arrested in Orem Friday for driving under the influence of alcohol, the FBI in Salt Lake City reported Monday.

Norman Tsintjinnine was charged June 30 for a murder on an Indian reservation. Bond was set at $10,000.

He was accused of running over and killing a 70-year-old woman at the Kaibeto Trading Post on the Navajo Indian Reservation in Arizona following a family argument.

Provo man found dead

The body of a man was found in Rock Canyon Sunday.

James Brent Adams Jr., 38, of 1089 W. 820 North, Provo, was found dead of a gunshot wound in his pickup truck at about 1:30 p.m. by a couple running their dogs in the canyon.

According to Provo Detective Glade M. Terry, Adams died of an "unattended death" from a gunshot wound in his head. A gun was found near the body, but no foul play was suspected, Terry said.

Elder Benson recovering

President Ezra Taft Benson, of the LDS Church's Council of Twelve, is doing well this week after undergoing a hip operation last Wednesday.

President Benson, 78-year-old former Secretary of Agriculture during the Eisenhower administration, underwent surgery Wednesday in the LDS Hospital after suffering a broken hip when a horse he was holding for a friend bolted and knocked him down.

Boats searching for body

Spotter boats were searching last night for the body of a Salt Lake City man who apparently drowned Saturday afternoon in Utah Lake.

Sheriff Mack Holley said the sheriff's department and the Utah County Jeep Patrol have sectioned off the immediate area in case the body should surface.

Richard Nelson, 28, of 2190 Lake St., number 41, Salt Lake City, was boating with three friends one mile southeast of Saratoga Resort when he commented he was hot and wanted to cool off. He entered the eight-foot-deep water and, according to the sheriff, cramps resulted when his hot body was thrust into cold water.

Murderer's blood type to be known, police say

The blood type of the strangler-killer of Maria Rae Scharp will be known early this week, according to Provo Police Det. Dean James.

The rapist's blood type can be determined by sperm-residue tests, James said. "About 80 percent of all men are 'secreters,' and 20 percent are non-secreters," he said, meaning they do or do not ejaculate sperm. "It's no problem to type the suspect's blood if he is a secreteur, but unfortunately our suspect falls in the other 20 percent. We can still determine his blood type, but the tests are a lot more involved and take more time."

Still waiting for results of FBI lab analysis on articles involved in the crime, including Miss Scharp's wallet, found empty outside her home after the murder, Lt. Bud Gillman indicated that it may be some time before conclusive evidence comes in.

"When you consider that all of the lab work from all of the states goes into this one agency, it's no wonder that it takes then some time," Gillman said. "The local agencies just don't have the means or sophisticated equipment to do any lab work."

Gillman indicated that as the lab analyses establish more concrete evidence, police will be able to narrow their suspect range.

Miss Scharp's body was found June 30 by her four roommates. Police estimated the murder took place between 11 p.m. and midnight June 29 while she was alone in her unlocked home at 45 W. 200 South, Provo.

Miss Scharp served a health mission in Guatemala and had attended BYU for five semesters. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Scharp, live in Farmington.

Heritage Resort

Maple Flat up for rezoning

By JON WHITE
Universe Staff Writer

Provo City Commission will consider a Heritage Mountain rezoning proposal from the Provo Planning Commission at 7:30 tonight in the commission chambers.

75 acres re-zoned

The Planning Commission gave Heritage another nod last Wednesday when, with only one dissenting vote, it approved rezoning of 75 acres from an A1-40 (agricultural) zone to a P-C (planned community) zone.

The lot, known as Discovery Village, is located in the Maple Flat area of the Heritage Mountain project.

Planning staff spokesman Leland Gamette said the change had the approval of the Forest Service. He said this and other areas had not been included in a larger rezoning request by Wilderness Associates approved earlier this year.

Protests made

Formal protests of the rezoning move were lodged by Lillian Hayes, Bryan Beard and W.R. Liechty.

Mrs. Hayes said the area was originally set aside for watershed use. She told the Planning Commission that development in the area would upset the natural balance and would be devastating.

Beard, a Logan resident representing the Utah Chapter of the Sierra Club, said the Forest Service was given jurisdiction of the area to protect the watershed. He said development of the area would cause severe damage and erode the watershed.

Liechty told the commission not to re-zone the area until the whole picture could be seen. He said the area was given a "critical watershed" designation 10 years ago. "If it's critical then, it is still critical now," he said.

Flood danger

Liechty then questioned the availability of water to the area and pointed out the increased flood danger caused by cutting ski runs on the mountain. He told the commission that clearing the mountainside for ski slopes would result in a 74 percent increase in runoff during a severe summer thunderstorm.

Planning staff spokesman Dave Gardner said the change was unrelated to the planned rezoning. He said that and other problems would be dealt with in future meetings.

Liechty also asked the commission to listen to protests and weigh their decision carefully. He said that he attended commission meetings he felt as if the mission members came with their minds made up.

Planning Commission member Betty Smith then moved the motion to approve the rezoning and City Commissioner Earl Wignall seconded it. Mrs. Smith said she hoped commission members were a little more informed. Liechty felt they were.

Provo City airport land title in question

By JON WHITE
Universe Staff Writer

Who owns the Provo City Airport? There may be some question.

According to Airport Manager Dave Gunn, the city has a title problem with the land on which the airport is built. Legally, the land may be owned by the federal government rather than Provo City.

The problem revolves around the question of Provo's airport existing on land known as "accretion land." Accretion land is land that was once covered by water, and is "associated with, part of or inherent to any navigable body of water," Gunn explained.

By federal law, all navigable bodies of water and accretion lands are owned by the federal government.

Utah Lake navigable?

Gunn said there is some question as to whether or not Utah Lake is defined as a navigable body of water. If it is, Provo's airport is built on federally owned accretion land. "Provo City has paid for the land, but there may be a problem with the title," he said.

According to Dee Bradford, assistant Provo City attorney, the problem is the same one that Salt Lake City faced a few years ago concerning the Great Salt Lake.

Bradford said the present dispute between Provo City and the Department of Interior is over whether or not the rights to the land are contained in the city patent.

Paul Calder, chief of the Lands and Recreation Branch of the Central Utah Project, said the airport lands are not contained in the city patent, but are outside the survey boundary of the original Provo City patent.

However, he said the federal government "has no intention of trying to deprive Provo of its airport lands. In fact, we are working with the city commission on the Airport and Airways Act to give the city all rights for the existing airport."

Can airport expand?

According to Calder, the problem is whether or not the Provo airport will be allowed to expand its runways into Provo Bay.

"The proposal to expand into Provo Bay will have to be studied after working out the title to the existing airport," he said, and Provo City and the federal government will have to find some common ground on which to stand concerning airport expansion.

Gunn said the city attorney and the city commission are working with Utah's congressional delegation and the Department of Interior to straighten out the problem. He said the question will probably be settled "within the next year or so."

The city commission "wants to make sure there are no title problems" before attempting to expand the airport, he added.

Longview photo shows airport near Utah Lake which is currently being debated as to its land ownership, whether it belongs to Provo City or to the federal government.

Brothers find family togetherness at LTM; 2 teach, 2 study to serve Oriental missions

By PAM TAYLOR

Entering the LTM can be a lonely experience, unless brothers are there together. Four brothers from Vienna, Va. are currently in the LTM.

R. Paul Evans, 22, and Mark, 21, are both returned missionaries from Japan and teach Japanese. Their twin brothers, John and Joel, 19, are preparing to leave on missions to the Orient in August. John is going to the Tokyo South Mission and Joel to Hong Kong.

"The four of us have always done everything together," Paul, the oldest, explained. "As kids we stuck together. When we've needed to be together, we've always been there. It seems only fitting that we be in the LTM together — even under different circumstances."

Good, bad side

The brothers agree that being in the LTM together has its advantages and disadvantages.

Even though the twins don't have classes from their brothers, they said that it's almost as if they do. "We see each other every day," Mark said. "We give them special help and encouragement. It's almost like having them in class."

But according to Paul, it is better they do not teach their brothers. "It would be hard to treat them as missionaries rather than as kid brothers, like calling them the family names."

But Paul does see an advantage. "We know how far they can go (their potential) and we'd push them to their limits," he explained.

As far as the twins are concerned, they enjoy having their brothers around. "It saves money," John claims. "We don't have to write as many letters."

Sometimes mistaken

Even though the twins claim their companions can tell them apart, other people have trouble. "Many elders think I'm John," said Joel. "They come up to me and speak in Japanese. I just answer in Cantonese."

The twins agreed their biggest problems are in the cafeteria. "The workers are always asking me if I've been through the line twice," Joel said.

But as far as "twin tricks" go, the identical pair said they have stopped for a while. "It's against mission rules," Joel said.

Even though Joel is the only brother not going to Japan, he is pleased with his call to Hong Kong. "I'm having an easier time with the language. Maybe that's why I was called to Hong Kong. Besides, I think we need a little variety in the family."

The Mormon Tabernacle Choir entered its 50th year "on the air" last Sunday when "Music and the Spoken Word" was broadcast for the 2,562nd time.

The choir is heard on the CBS Radio Network and is seen on television in various locations around the U.S. In addition, it is heard in Canada, Europe, Latin America, the Philippines and the South Seas.

A 1964 issue of "Life" illustrated the weekly radio program saying, "Before the H-Bomb, before the atomic age, before World War II, before 'the long Presidency,' before Hitler, before the Japanese seized Manchuria, before the Great Depression, and even before the Wall Street crash, long, long ago on July 15, 1929, a great 375-voice choir

Joel (left), Mark, Paul and John Evans, find that the LTM can be a family affair. Mark and Paul teach there and Joel and John are preparing to serve missions in the Orient. All four brothers have been called to Oriental missions.

"When we first found out (about Joel's call) we felt bad because we thought he felt bad," Mark said. "But he didn't. Now we're glad he's going to Hong Kong. Besides, the languages are similar — we can still communicate."

Special purpose

The brothers feel there is a special purpose for being called to the Orient. "We all think the same," Paul said. "Maybe we had special friends in the pre-existence."

In two weeks the twins will leave, but the Evans brothers will not be sad. "We'll only be 1,000 miles away," John said. "And I'll have a companion — it's almost the same thing."

"We always look forward to seeing each other but we all know that we're doing what we're supposed to do," Paul said.

The brothers attribute their successes in the gospel to their parents, Richard and Patricia Evans, and to the rest of their family, David, 15, MaryAnn, 14 and Johanna, 10. "The whole reason we're on the right track today is because of our parents, especially our father — he's a great man," Mark said.

When asked where they think their younger brother, David, will go on his mission there wasn't a moment's hesitation; all four brothers resounded in one emphatic chorus, "To the Orient!"

Oak Cluster

Student earns medal

A BYU student has been awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal First Oak Leaf Cluster.

Scott A. Edgar, a senior in international relations from Cupertino, Calif., was presented the award by Air Force Col. Richard B. Jensen, professor of aerospace studies at BYU.

The citation was given for Sgt. Edgar's meritorious service as the squadron intelligence non-commissioned officer for the 23rd Tactical Fighter Squadron, 52nd Tactical Wing, Spangdahlem Air Base, West Germany.

During the three year assignment, Edgar organized a training program for the 80 pilots and navigators in the squadron. The program included briefing and debriefing of fighter crews, instructing them on the military capabilities of potential enemies and keeping them abreast of current world intelligence situations.

Edgar is currently a cadet major in the BYU Air Force ROTC program and has served nine years on active duty in the Air Force including assignments in England, New Mexico, Thailand and Germany. His original Air Force Commendation Medal was for work done with the 1st Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron, RAF Alconbury, England.

He is attending BYU on the GI Bill and will be commissioned as a second lieutenant next year upon graduation before returning to active duty in the intelligence field.

Dale Fletcher, Secured Art Gallery director, shows damage done to painting owned by BYU.

Staff, faculty negligence creates costly repair bill

By MICHAEL McDONALD
Universe Staff Writer

Carelessness, ignorance and laziness are costing BYU thousands of dollars in damage to valuable art objects.

"Many BYU staff and faculty members don't know how to care for the objects that they acquire from the gallery to put in their offices," said Dale Fletcher, Secured Art Gallery director. "Instead of calling for the Physical Plant to hang the paintings, they try to do it themselves with a finishing nail. When the painting falls, the damage can be terribly expensive. The pile of damaged paintings just keeps accumulating in the racks."

Paul Hallgren, one of the clerks who works in the art storage area, explained that the art works are insured for an estimated $4 million, but "it is difficult to say how much the paintings are really worth since the damage can devalue them so drastically."

The costs of repair can outweigh the original price of many of the paintings that BYU owns.

One difficulty BYU has in caring for their art works is the expense of a conservator of paintings, a professional who cleans and restores the damaged paintings.

"To my knowledge there are only two places in the country where conservers are trained," Fletcher said. It is difficult to find a conservator who will come to BYU. "There is probably one, maybe two Mormon conservators in the world."

According to Fletcher, other damage to the art works comes from vandalism. He reported pencils, fingers and other objects being pushed through oil paintings. "I can't think of any reason why anyone would want to destroy or mar something beautiful."

Referring to a 17th century Dutch painting, he said, "This painting came in here in fine condition but because of carelessness, it was terribly scratched. It makes one want to shed tears to think that it lasted for almost three centuries to be damaged in this way."

Board meets through July

The Utah County Board of Equalization will meet every day until July 31 (except July 24) from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. to hear complaints and inquiries concerning valuation notices for property tax purposes.

The board is composed of the county commissioners. Taxpayers are asked to bring their valuation notices with them.

Seattle presidency counselors named

Two counselors have been called to serve in the presidency of the Seattle Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The First Presidency of the church announced Gene M. Conger of Seattle and Anthony I. Eyring of Mercer Island will join with Temple President F. Arthur Kay to comprise the presidency of the temple.

Conger, 69, is a native of Blackfoot, Idaho, but for the past 25 years has resided in the Seattle area where he established his own real estate appraising business.

He holds both bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Idaho and is a former comptroller for Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho.

He has served in the church as a bishop, stake clerk, high counselor and Sunday School teacher.

Eyring, 72, is a native of Colonia Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico. He attended Arizona schools and graduated from BYU. He later earned a master of business administration degree from New York University.

For many years Eyring was employed by Chase Manhattan Bank, becoming vice president before leaving in 1963 to head the Washington Mutual Savings Bank in Seattle. Since moving to Seattle he has also served in numerous civic positions.

Marsh receives NCAA grant, recognized for brains-brawn

One of the most outstanding athletes to wear the blue and white of BYU has been named one of the six NCAA Division I scholar-athletes for 1978.

Henry Marsh, who earlier this year was named BYU's scholar-athlete by the Western Athletic Conference in recognition for his long-distance running performances, will receive a $1,500 scholarship for postgraduate study from the NCAA grant.

Marsh is BYU's second track star to be so honored by the NCAA. In 1977, Richard Reid, also a distance runner and four-time All-American for BYU, received a similar award.

Announcement of the NCAA grants and their recipients was made by executive director Walter Byers at NCAA headquarters in Kansas City Friday.

"Considering the number of potential candidates across the country, this award stands as a significant honor," Byers said.

Marsh, who graduated cum laude from BYU this spring as a pre-law major, established the American record in the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 1977 and most recently won the steeplechase event in the United States vs. Russia meet at the University of California two weeks ago.

Marsh is not only known for his track victories in the national scene but on the international circuit as well. He is still the American record holder in the steeplechase, which came from an official 22:15 clocking a year ago in Stockholm, Sweden. He also participated in the World Games in Helsinki, Finland last year.

Coach Robison also said that Marsh's track accomplishments have been quite amazing, considering the fact that Henry was not running for two years while serving on a church mission in South America.

"He had been back from his mission less than a year when he began setting records," Robison recalled. "His career as a runner - both in cross country and the steeplechase has been remarkable."

"But the thing that makes this NCAA award even more meaningful is the fact that Henry is also a top scholar and outstanding person," added the veteran BYU mentor. "We were told by the NCAA that this year's candidates were of extremely high calibre."

Sports

The Daily Universe

Marsh gained status as a world class runner when he was the top U.S. finisher in the Montreal 1976 Olympic steeplechase event.

"I honestly believe that Henry has yet to reach his full potential," BYU's head track coach Clarence Robison commented, on learning of the NCAA award for Marsh.

"He has the ability to be a medal winner at the next Olympic games in Russia," Robison added.

golfer cited nationally, wings to All-American team

Another BYU starman has joined the All-American club - golfer Bobby Clappett.

A sophomore at BYU, Clappett was named to the first-team America list for both Golf World, a magazine, and the U.S. Golf Coaches Association.

After the honors bestowed upon Clappett took the form of Junior Amateur in Albuquerque, the California Amateur title and amateur at the U.S. Open.

Clappett, who led last year's squad of BYU Coach Tucker prior to the ending of the 1977-78 season.

Up to this point, Clappett has done everything Johnny Brannan has done," Tucker said.

Indeed, Clappett on doing things Brannan had done as he joined the list of former BYU stars who were first All-Americans: Brannan, Mike Rice, Leach and Lance Leach.

Another participant of Summerfun '78, Patrick Shane, Provo High School's track coach and former BYU athlete, announced at the completion of the race that a newly-formed jogging club will meet at the school every night from 8-10 p.m.

Shane said groups will be organized into runners of 1-2 miles, 3-5 miles and further distances. Anyone, regardless of age and ability, is invited to participate in the group runs.

Many of the contestants who participated in the first annual Summerfun '78 last Saturday were warming-up for the 26-mile Deseret News Marathon classic July 24 in Salt Lake City. The marathon is included in the activities of the annual Pioneer Days Celebration in the Salt Lake.

Although the nation may be running ahead of Utah in some sports, the area's jogging program has been lengthening its strides to catch up.

The question stands: Has it been running away from you?

Cowboy brands the Rams

What do you get when you tangle a Cowboy with the Rams?

Fifteen carries for 81 yards and three pass completions for 53 yards.

That is what happened recently when the Dallas Cowboys' second-round draft choice Tod Christensen, former BYU star running back, crossed paths with the Los Angeles Rams rookies in an hour-and-a-half scrimmage.

As a four-year Cougar starter (1974-77), Christensen led BYU, the leading passing team in the nation, for three consecutive years in total pass-receiving yards. This might have established the 6-2, 255-pound fullback as the nation's premiere receiver from the fullback slot, BYU's sports information center indicated.

Christensen ended his college career with 1,566 yards from 152 passes caught, 1,066 yards rushing and 116 total points scored.

A roads of complaints lead to Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) —

"Everything starts someplace else — it finishes right here," said Police Capt. Joseph Mazur, a mild undertone of complaint in his voice.

"Take the Bakke decision. It began in California, but where do the protesters come? New York City went broke, where did their policemen and firemen demonstrate? The Shah of Iran visits, who gets the pickets and the bricks? We do."

Decades of marches

Get Capt. Mazur rolling on the subject of protest marches and he'll rattles off a decade's worth. Vietnam. Postal workers. Yuppies. Human rights in this country and abroad. Pro-abortion.
Anti-abortion.

"This is the capital and this is where people come to," Mazur says.

"Expect any trouble with the latest group."

"You mean the Indians? Nah!"

"No, the traveling salesmen."

"Traveling salesmen?" Mazur replied. "You kidding?"

Salesmen's Awareness Day

There was indeed such a demonstration planned for Tuesday as Salesmen's Awareness Day — a serious matter for traveling salesmen wanting to impress congressmen that some pending legislation will hurt their income and retail sales generally.

At the time of the conversation, the police department's Special Operations Division was preparing for a group of Indians who had marched across the country to plead their case for reigning lost lands, water and fishing rights.

As Mazur says, Washington is the place people go to when they've got a beef. Last year the police department issued 252 parade permits. That, of course, includes such benign spectacles as the Cherry Blossom parade, but it also leaves out the sometimeshairy demonstrations at embassies that arise without benefit of permit.

The British probably started the custom of marching on Washington in 1814, leaving a bigger mess than any later demonstration. They burned the Capitol, the president's house and many of the city's buildings.

In 1861, Virginia threw in with the South, and the cry was "On to Washington." For the rest of the Civil War, the city was a target.

The first non-political protest apparently was Coxey's Army — some-300 unemployed workers who marched from Massillon, Ohio, in 1894 to "petition the government for a redress of grievances." Coxey and others tried to speak from the Capitol steps and were jailed.

At the time, the entire federal workforce consisted of 130 clerks.

The 20th Century's first notable protest gatherings, in the latter part of Herbert Hoover's administration, were the hunger marches that seared the capital with the country's acute economic distress.

HFAC parking lot change

adds more space for cars

Over 50 additional parking spaces were added to the HFAC parking lot after it was leveled and resurfaced
last week, according to Sergeant Dan Clark,
traffic enforcement
supervisor.

One-way lanes which used to run north and south have been changed to two-way lanes running east and west,
resulting in about 24 additional facility spaces with the remainder of the new stalls being allotted for student use,
Clark said.

He said there were three main reasons for the change. "The one-

way rows ending down near the building where pedestrians were created unnecessary congestion.
We also wanted to eliminate the bottleneck at the north exit and to create more parking
stalls," he said.

All three goals have been met, Clark said.
"We've made the lot better looking by eliminating about 20
signs and landscapers
will be planting shrubs
along the east periphery."

Eldon Henrickson.

Plane, surfer crash; pilot loses license

HONOLULU (AP) —

What may have been the world's first surfboardairplane collision has resulted in William H.
Connelly losing his pilot's license for five months.

Administrative law
judge Robert Boyd ordered Connelly's license suspended Friday, after a Federal Aviation Administration hearing into the accident last October 13.

Other surfers testified that Connelly was flying low over the waves at the famed Banzai Pipeline surfing area on Oahu's
north shore when surfer
Robert S. Fram, 22, dove into the water from his board, causing it to shoot up and strike the lower wing of Connelly's bi-plane.

Choir airs from 1929

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 375-voice Mormon Tabernacle Choir began its 50th year of broadcasting Sunday on its CBS Radio program "Music and the Spoken Word."

The choir's weekly radio broadcasts began in 1929 when the first announcer, Edward B. Kimball had to use a ladder to reach the single microphone placed at an elevation sufficient to pick up the choir's voices.

"ABOUT FACE: UNDERSTANDING EMOTIONAL EXPRESSION"

Questions to be discussed:

1. Are emotional expressions like reflexes or like words?
2. Are facial expressions of emotion reliable?
3. Is there but one meaning to an expression like a smile?
4. What are the ways in which people differ, within a culture, in their facial expressions, and why do they differ?
5. How does culture influence emotional expression?
6. Are there sex differences in emotional expression?

Androcles tames children

"Androcles and the Lion" delighted the children who attended Saturday's matinee performance. The Captain, Mark Bachan, brags of glorious deeds performed to Pantalone, Mark Evenden. The play is one of four performed in repertory by the Whittlin' Brigade.

'Kids 'n Things' seen in photos

"I like the feeling of freedom in capturing kids doing their own thing," expressed John Earl Call, a photo communications major, about his one man show titled "Kids 'n Things" in the Wilkinson Center Gallery currently on display through July 29.

Call first graduated from BYU with a major in archeology in 1975 and came back for a second major in photography to capture the exciting world of children.

"I label myself as an 'action candid photographer' which I differentiate from the standard studio photographer who has his subjects in a set pose," he stated.

He confessed that too many negative criticisms are expressed about youth today and often their world captures the most sincere effort of all.

For instance, Call travels throughout the state to watch kids participate in both competitive and noncompetitive events that include skateboarding, motorcross, baseball, swimming, and just having fun.

"I watch the determination of their whole selves compete in events; their expressions, feelings, energy, freedom and everything about them that makes their world so unique,"

he stated.

Call's one man show could fittingly be labeled his "Honey-moon Exhibit" because he and his best man spent Saturday hanging the display between his morning wedding and afternoon reception.

His new bride, the former Marie Mann of Texas, stated on Monday as the couple finished mounting and straightening the displays, "John had only one day to hang his exhibit and somehow it happened to fall on our wedding day. In fact I made him bring me back to the Wilkinson Gallery after our reception Saturday night so I could finally see his exhibit."

Call's talent is exemplified by recent awards he received in the Utah County Fair in action photography. He was the recipient of a blue ribbon for his picture of youth swinging a trapeze over a river and a red ribbon for his skateboarder racing on a downhill course.

Metal sculptor depicted on TV

"North Star: Mark di Suvero" — an intimate portrait of the 44-year-old sculptor who has been called the last heroic figure in contemporary art — premieres tonight at 8 p.m. on KBYU-TV.

Joan Mondale was transfixed by the 35 tons of scrap metal was unloaded destined to be a sculpture at Washington's Hirshhorn Museum which will be dedicated July 19.

Di Suvero had collected the scrap from locales across the nation. A ship's bow from Terminal Island, Cal., a locomotive cab from a plant near Chicago. It will end up as a 65-foot-long, 33-foot-wide sculpture titled "Isis."

"North Star: Mark di Suvero" records the inner world of an extraordinary artist on Channel 11 at 8 p.m. tonight.

'Maples' blossom

A house that walks on chicken legs, a witch who turns boys into trees and talking animals are some of the characters featured in the Whittlin' Brigade's presentation of "Two Maples."

This Slavic fairy tale opens Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Nelke Experimental Theater, HFAC. Tickets can be purchased at the door or from the Drama Theater Ticket Office.

"Maples" is one of four children's theater productions being performed by the Brigade. "Androcles and the Lion," the "Puppet Variety Show" and "Mormon Montage" on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 7 p.m. and also at 10 a.m. on Saturdays.

Derived from an old Russian fairy tale, "Maples" is the story of a witch who turns two boys into trees and enslaves their mother. The mother enlists the aid of a slow-witted bear, a sophisticated cat and a friendly dog to outwit the witch.
